Remains Conveyed to New York.

The remains of Mrs. Harry F. Smith were removed today to Groton, N. Y., for interment. Mrs. Smith died Tuesday eveningat her home, 314 A street northeast. She was lying on a lounge after supper listening to her husband, who was reading aloud from a newspaper. Mr. Smith's attention was attracted to her by hearing her sigh and he noticed that one of her hands fell to her side. He replaced the hand on her bosom and, supposing she had dropped asleep, he returned to his paper. An hour later, when he attempted to arouse her so that she might go to bed, he was horrified to find that she was dead.

LAST TRIBUTE TO THE DEAD

FUNERAL OF JOHN B. BRADY, LATE BUILDING INSPECTOR.

The Services at St. Dominie's Church Largely Attended-The Pastor's Discourse.

The widespread popularity of the late John B. Brady, the inspector of buildings for the District, was evidenced this morning, when funeral services were held over his remains at St. Dominic's Roman Catholic Church, at 6th and E streets southwest. The edifice was filled with Mr. Brady's friends as early as 8:30 o'clock, although the solemn requiem mass was not begun until after 9 o'clock. Genuine sorrow was expressed on all sides. The services were very impressive, and during the mass the choir sang "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," in addition to the sacred chants. In the multitude which gathered to pay a last tribute of respect to the dead District officer were many prominent officials of the municipal government, including Commis-sioner Henry B. F. Macfarland, together with representatives from the Catholic so-cities to which Mr. Brady was attached. His fellow church members were present in large numbers. The mass was celebrated Rev. Father T. P. O'Rourke, with ther J. C. Kent as deacon and Father J. R. Spearing as subdeacon. Father Joseph McGee, pastor of the Church of the Sacre Heart, was also in the sanctuary. The pall-bearers were Mr. J. T. Petty, the District auditor; Mr. D. E. McComb, the superin-tendent of sewers; Mr. Snowden Ashford, the assistant inspector of buildings; Mr. Thomas Francis of the bunding inspector's office, Mr. James F. Shea and Mr. E. J. Hannan, former president of the Carroll A large delegation from Car roll Institute was present at the services. The Floral Offerings.

When the casket containing the remains was borne into the church it was covered with beautiful floral offerings. It was placed at the head of the center aisle. An altar boy, clad in pure white, placed a candelabra, with seven burning tapers, on the casket, while the choir was softly singing hymn. The complete ceremonies of the olemn requiem mass were gone through.

At the conclusion of the services pre-scribed by the church Father O'Rourke paid a tribute to Mr. Brady. He spoke first of the solemnity and certainty of death. He said the world was filled with many classes some rich, some poor, some lecherous and wicked, some pure. There was reason for all this, he declared, as one could readily perceive in perusing the first pages of the Bible. In the destinies of all manner of men there were four inevitable certaintiesdeath, judgment, hell or heaven. It is the judgment, it was declared, which makes death so bitter.

"Why do I speak to you of this subject with which we are all so familiar today?" continued Father O'Rourke. "It is the opportunity the church takes of reminding all of you who are within my hearing that you must die. You were not created for this world, but for the world beyond the grave. God has given into your care something that belongs to Him and to Him alone the immortal soul. When He turned Adam from the garden of Eden, when He took from him all material things, there was yet something left to the man-his God gives this soul over into your hands and it is within the power of man to see that his soul is saved, or that it is not. Death, my friends, must come to us all, it will come like the thief in the night, and so I say to you, be prepared."

Catholic Teaching.

Father O'Rourke then spoke of the Catholic doctrine of purgatory and the herearter. He said it was preposterous for any man to say that the same hereafter awaits the murderer, the thief, the criminal, the unclean, as awaits the honest man, the man whom all esteem and know to be good. It is soul is so clean that he can stand before the judgment without further preparation and enter at once into the kingdom of God. The Catholic Church teaches that man, however good he may be on earth, must go through some degree of purging before he becomes the associate of angels. That, in a nutshell, is the Catholic doctrine. The church teaches, he declared, that while the soul is being weighed, and being purged, those on earth may help with their prayers and their denials. He pleaded that friendship should not end at the grave, but should go beyond and continue to the Tribute to the Dead. "Is it necessary," said Father O'Rourke, for me to eulogize this man about whom we have gathered to pay a last token of friendship, John B. Brady? His superiors, in the persons of the District Commissioners, have bespoken his praise in an official document. His associates have given expression to their estimate of his character as a friend and a man. As a son, as a father, as a husband, he was an example. He was conscientious and true in all things, and what more can be said of a man? As a Catholic he was faithful to the church. knew him as no other man did, for I was his confessor. I say that he was a good He was a credit to his family, and a credit to the community. His loss will be deeply felt. Yet it is God's will. Weep not for him, for tears are unavailing."

The interment was made in Mount Olivet cemetery, only the family and immediate friends being present.

Board of Education Takes Action--Changes in Schools. It is announced that the board of education has decided to take drastic measures to stamp out the use of tobacco by public school children during school hours, especially the smoking of cigarettes. The subject was discussed at last night's meeting of the board and was referred to a special committee to formulate a plan of action. Boys have been seen smoking cigarettes in the school yard, and several cases of boys chewing tobacco were noticed ecently. The attention of the supervising principals has been called to the matter with instructions to strictly enforce the tobacco regulations hereafter. Teachers are also to be instructed to keep careful watch over the habits of their pupils and to punish all infractions of the rule prohibiting the use of tobacco.

The Hoxie Tunnel. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

An all-around example of the frony of fate is the fact that the Washington aqueduct tunnel is now popularly known as the 'Lydecker tunnell." The administration of Captain Lydecker was a very unfortunate one for himself and gave "the hole in the ground" a national reputation. Congress then lumped its cost upon the District and left the tunnel to its own salvation. In an unobstrusive way and without an appropriation, it went on collecting water until its surplus flowed over into Rock creek, good, fair water, and with fewer microbes to the gallon than found in that of the classic Potomac. Therefore and finally it did not commend itself to plain common sense that a growing city should have water famine scares with an underground reservoir at hand, holding millions of galons of water, and not utilized for any purpose whatsoever. Its tremendous pressures had not wrenched open the earth, and was altogether so tractable that it could be safely approached again with appropriations. This was done and continued until after many vicissitudes this day it is fulfilling the duty of an underground river and for the purpose it was originally in-

idea and plan originated with Capt. R. L. Hoxie, one of the early Engineer Commissioners of the District, some twenty years ago. He gave his whole soul and energy to its initiation and advancement. He actually lived in it, and for the period he had charge of it he kept it under his constant inspection and supervision had charge of it he kept it under his constant inspection and supervision.

Let us be fair and not show further forgetfulness or ignorance, but give the construction its true popular title, the "Hoxie" tunnel.

Police of Washington in Possession of Important Information-The Herzeg Case.

Officials of the local police department are unable to understand why the authorities of Maryland and Virginia have not taken decisive action against the men on oyster boats who are charged with maltreating those under them, the case of the unfortunate man Edward Herzog being cited as an example. Happening on the river, and in many instances miles distant from the headquarters of the county officials, the sheriffs and constables cannot always arrest the assailants of the comparatively friendless dredgers, but it is believed there are instances where prompt action would effect capture. Those who meet with misfortune along the lower Potomac and are dumped ashore anywhere within a hundred miles of this city usually make their way here. Upon their arrival they are cared for and are usually given transportation to their homes. When Herzog arrived here, more than two weeks ago, Major Sylvester took a personal interest in his case, not only to see that he received the best treatment possible, but aiso took steps to have his alleged assailants apprehended. Following up the case Captain Boardman has obtained testimony which will no doubt greatly assist the Virginla authorities in the matter of prosecu-

Tender of Aid Suggested.

Because of the manner in which these cases have been saddled upon the District it has been suggested that Major Sylvester tender the services of a detective or two to go down the river and assist the Virginia authorities. Knowing considerable about the case, it is believed they could render valuable assistance. Governor Tyler, as printed in The Star several days ago, has promised to do everything in his power to land the guilty parties in court. This is only one of several similar cases of the den; recording secretary, Mrs. Harriet E. the police this season.

These cases came to attention earlier this winter than usual. As a rule the first victims of ill-usage do not appear until the ice forms, and then they come to the city afoot, with frost-bitten feet, ears or hands. In many cases amputation has followed, but the police do not recall any cases in which death occurred. It is fortunate for many of these sufferers that the crews of some of the river boats are made up of men who are willing to lend them a help-ing hand. Men on the river boats fully understand how some of the oystermen are treated, and they also realize that heroic methods are necessary in dealing with the captains of some of the craft. The list of victims of the oyster dredgers includes many people who have seen better According to the information furnished by those who have come here to be cared for, the practice of getting men from Baltimore to the oyster beds under alleged false pretenses has been indulged in for

The Men Deceived.

The police have frequently been told by the victims that they started off on the boats with the understanding that they were to be taken down the bay to do work of an entirely different character, but the result was coercion into the service of the oyster men. Objection to dredging or culling oysters was of no avail in any case, and from 3 a.m. until 10 p.m., the men were required to work, sometimes in weather that was freezing cold. The diet seemed to be insufficient for a working man, but a dredger who was caught eating an oys-ter expected and usually received severe punishment been shanghaled, and they showed physical evidence in support of their assertions. Only a few days ago a colored dredger from Baltimore alleged that he had been shot three times in the chest and side by the captain of an oyster boat. He said he was as saulted because he informed the captain that he would work no longer and that he was going to return home. Several oyster captains have been fined in the Baltimore courts for cruelty during recent years. A report from Cambridge early this week gave information of the shooting of a colored dredger by the cap-tain of an oyster boat, but it is believed he will recover.

Sewer to Be Constructed Under the Permit System.

Louis P. Shoemaker has written to the District Commissioners requesting an estimate of the cost of extending sewer and water main on Blair road to accommodate his property about 600 feet north of Chestnut avenue. Captain Chester Harding, assistant to the Engineer Commissioner, has reported upon the matter, saying that it is the policy of the Commissioners not to extend a water main until sewers are provided in the vicinity. He recommends that Mr. Shoemaker be informed that the sewer will be constructed under the permit system at an estimated cost to him of $525 unless the owners of the intermediate prop-erties join in the application, in which case the sewer can be laid under the assessment system. Upon provision being made for the extension of the sewer the water main will be extended at a cost of $125 to Mr. Shoemaker, this sum representing the amount assessment which will be levied against his property.

in Controversy. In connection with the decree signed yesterday by Justice Hagner in the case of Nelligan and others against Woodward and others, having reference to the rights of parties under a deed of trust to secure the As a result of the disagreement Thomas Second Workingmen's Building Association, an appeal to the Court of Appeals has been noted by the defendants. The history of the case is stated to be that in 1886 the father of the complainants borrowed a certain amount from the building association, securing it by a deed of trust upon certain real estate. He made various monthly payments thereon. In 1890 he obtained from John T. Lynch, the secretary of the building association, a statement of the amount then due it, and claimed to have paid the full amount to Lynch at the office of an attorney, whereupon Lynch delivered to him and his wife the original deed of trust, bond to the building association and abstract, the trustees under the deed of trust, however, not being called upon to execute a deed of release. From that time on until his death in 1892, it is stated. Nelligan made no further payments to the building association, supposing that his indebtedness was paid. In 1899, according to the records, the building association notified Nelligan's heirs of the fact that the amount under the deed of trust was still due, and threatened to foreclose under the deed of trust, whereupon

The decree, as passed, directs the trus-tees under the deed of trust to execute a release to the heirs of the property from the deed of trust. POLICE INVESTIGATING.

Man in Workhouse Suspected of Having Given False Name .

Members of the detective corps are inquiring into the record of a man who was recently committed to the workhouse under the name of Teddy McCabe on a charge of vagrancy. The prisoner claimed he was an ironmaker and showed a card indicating he was a member of the union in Philadelphia. Members of the union made an investigation and learned that Teddy McCabe, a reputable man, had lost his card in Philadelphia. They also learned that McCabe had not been away from Philadelphia for several years.

It is now claimed that the prisoner in the workhouse answers the description in many respects, of John Wykoff, alias Richard Jordan, who is under indictment at Newark, N. J., for the murder of George R. Several Washingtonians have been among Smith. Captain Boardman is in communication with the Newark police concerning the workhouse prisoner.

Catarrh.

The cause exists in the blood, in what causes inflammation of the mucous membrane.

It is therefore impossible to cure the disease by local applications.

It is positively dangerous to neglect it, because it always affects the stomach and deranges the general health, and is likely to develop into consumption.

to consider the subject of a revision of the confession of faith and a new statement was held last evening in the chapel of the Church of the Covenant.
